This study would not have been possible without the cooperation of families from the '1,000 Family' study of the years 1947-62. Our first thanks must be to them. The work has been carried out within the Human Development Unit of the Nuffield Psychology and Psychiatry Department, University of Newcastle upon Tyne, and, throughout the years it has taken to complete, all the authors have also been engaged on other tasks.

Early in the study the death of our experienced statistician and friend, Dr Roger Garside, deprived us of a senior member of the original team, but later we had great help from Mrs Hazel Fells, Mrs Mary Fleeting and Professor Robin Plackett. Mr Fred Wolstenholme, while a member of the unit, made a major contribution to the initial planning and preparation of the social interview proformas. Mrs Marjorie Blackburn, the Administrative Secretary to the Nuffield Unit, has throughout the whole period undertaken wide ranges of work beyond her ordinary commitment and the authors are deeply indebted to her. Mr Philip Alan Kolvin contributed to the chapter on contact with the law.

The onerous work of visiting the families locally was undertaken by Mrs Doris Fadden, Mrs Olwyn Pollinger and Mrs Nanette Nelson, who also visited those who lived outside Newcastle upon Tyne. We were able to arrange, through present and former members of the Nuffield Unit, for some families to be visited in Australia, Canada and South Africa.

Every facet of the study was essential and all were interdependent. Computer analysis was undertaken by Mrs Elaine Kennedy, Mrs Hazel Fells and Mrs Mary Fleeting.

The initial clerical work and contacts with the families were made by Mrs Lorna Wake and Mrs Dorothy Fisher. Several drafts of the book have been patiently typed by Miss Helen Davies and Mrs Kathleen McAneney. Mrs Nicola Sanderson and Mrs Anne Alexander prepared the final manuscript.

The main financial support for the initial planning, printing, visiting and the computerization of the data was given by the DHSS/SSRC to whom an initial report was made in 1982. We have also had generous supplementary grants from the Joseph Rowntree Trust; the W.T. Grant Foundation, New York; the Newcastle Inner Cities Fund; and the Joel Joffe Trust, and for the study of delinquency and criminality from the Home Office. We are grateful for all this help and hope that we have justified it.

Certain aspects of the material have been presented in several previous communications (Kolvin et al., 1983a; Kolvin et al., 1983b; Miller et al., 1985; Kolvin et al., 1988a; Kolvin et al., 1988b; Kolvin et al., 1988c).

Planning committee

We are indebted to our local planning committee which met on a regular basis. In addition to the four authors, it comprised the following membership: Psychology — Dr R.F. Garside; Newcastle Local Education Authority — Mr J.T. McLoughlin; Social Work — Mr F. Wolstenholme; Computing — Mrs E. Kennedy, Mrs H. Fells; Research Associate — Dr S.R.M. Gatzanis; and Mrs M. Blackburn — Administrative Secretary.

Steering committee

The Social Science Research Council Planning Committee made an invaluable contribution. We list here those who made regular contributions:

Representing the SSRC:	Professor P. Collison (Chairman) Mr M. Duggett (Secretary, to Joint Working Party) Professor M. Rutter Professor H. Goldstein
Representing the University of Newcastle upon Tyne:	Professor D. Eccleston Professor I. Kolvin
Representing Research Team:	Dr R.F. Garside Dr F.J.W. Miller Mr F. Wolstenholme

General acknowledgements

A project of this magnitude needs the collaboration and co-operation of many individuals and agencies and we wish to thank the many Directors of Education and Heads of staff of the schools in Newcastle and elsewhere, who have been most helpful. We are also grateful to Mr Roycroft, the Director of Social Services, Newcastle upon Tyne, and his research department.

We are indebted to Professor M. Rutter for constructive criticisms of our method and our concept of resilience. We would also like to thank Professor A. Clarke and Professor P. Collison for helpful comments on earlier drafts. We are also grateful to Dr D. Farrington for his help with the analysis and interpretation of our criminality data. We are also indebted to Professor Donald Court for his interest, support and encouragement. Finally we would like to thank Jackie McDermott for the compilation of the index.
