

---

Contents

---

List of Figures	vii
List of Tables	ix
Foreword	xv
Acknowledgements	xvi
 Part 1 ORIGIN AND METHOD OF STUDY
1 The background	3
2 The present study: planning and method	14
 Part II FAMILY AND ENVIRONMENT
3 Families of origin: the Red Spot children 1947-62	37
4 Families of formation	50
5 Deprivation, occupational class and mobility	64
6 Family income and male unemployment	72
7 Housing and neighbourhood	90
 Part III PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT AND DEPRIVATION
8 The Red Spots as children 1947-62	105
9 The Red Spots and their spouses in 1979-80	120
10 The children of the Red Spots 1979-80	129
 Part IV CHANGING FAMILIES
11 Change within generation 1952-62	145
12 Change across generations 1952-80	166
 Part V ROUTES TO AND FROM DEPRIVATION
13 Statistical indicators	211

vi Continuities of Deprivation?

Part VI CONTACT WITH THE LAW

14	Deprivation and offending	269
15	Non-deprived but delinquent: deprived but resilient	281
16	Prediction of criminality	290

Part VII REVIEW AND CONCLUSIONS

17	Perspectives, associations and statistics of deprivation	325	2.1
18	Summary findings based on comparison of groups	338	3.1
19	Understanding deprivation	355	4.1
20	Final conclusions of the Newcastle study	370	8.1
Appendices		376
References		379	11.1
Index		395	13.1
			13.2
			13.3
			13.4
			13.5
			13.6
			13.7
			13.8
			13.9
			13.10
			13.11
			13.12